OLD SERIES--VOL. XXV.

LOUISVILLE, MONDAY MORNING, JULY 12, 1869.

NEW SERIES--VOL. I. NO. 73

THE CITY.

Thanks.
Mr. F. Fowler, Conductor of the Silver Palace car "Eclipse," has our thanks for New York and Philadelphia papers.

Personal.
Our clever friend, J. H. Barkhouse, of Dorn, Barkhouse & Co., left yesterday for New York and the East on a trip which will combine business with pleasure.

Death of an Old Steamboatman.
Captain Jas. McKee, an old pilot and steamboat captain, died of apoplexy in St. Louis on Friday. He has kin-people living near Logansport, Ind.

Heard's Great Picture.
Heard's great animal picture is still on exhibition at Escott's gallery. If there is anybody who hasn't seen it, let him go and see it, and also make the acquaintance of the artist, who has more fun in him than any other man alive and as much genius as fun. It is the great animal picture of the world.

Police Matters.
Yesterday was a hard one on the police. There was so little animation among the bummers that the police had not enough to do to keep their hands in. Two little insignificant drunks and disorderlies, at the first street station, and a drunk and peace warrant at the jail, were all we heard of last night.

Death of a Noted Reeler.
Finny Cheatham, the mare who won so many triumphs on the turf, we understand, died at New Orleans several weeks ago of a disease commonly known as big-head. She had been sold to Mr. Contrill, of Mobile, on certain conditions, in whose stable she died. She was a fleet and game mare, and we record her death with regret.

Report of the Whisky Dealers.
The report of the committee appointed by the wholesale whisky dealers has been concluded and sent to Commissioner Deane at Washington. It states clearly and fairly their grievances and points out the hardness of the present construction of the law, which is really burdensome. It is to be hoped they may get relief.

Fruit House--Fine Melons.
W. A. Rhodes & Co., merchants, 231 market street, between Sixth and Seventh, are making specialty of importing fine fruits from the South. Last week they received a carload of bananas and coconuts, the finest ever brought to this market. They are also in daily receipt of peaches, pears, melons, new corn, &c., and received yesterday a thousand splendid watermelons. We are obliged to them for a melon only forty-eight hours out from Mississippi.

Hot Weather--A Rain Storm.
Yesterday was the hottest day of the season. From early morn until late in the afternoon Old Sol poured down his hottest rays, and relief came only with the rain storm, about four o'clock, and that even only slightly affected the temperature. From 11 o'clock a. m. until 4 p. m. the mercury stood at about 93 degrees. It fell three degrees after the storm. At 7 o'clock it marked 87. At a later hour clouds again overspread the heavens, and the air became cooler.

THE TOBACCO DEALERS.
Their Troubles Commence.
The whisky and tobacco law seems to be framed purposely to give trouble. They are complicated and work injustice, especially to the small dealers in tobacco and cigars. We learn the government detectives have been at work on them, and several shops have been closed for alleged violations of the law, and many more are "spotted," and liable at any moment to seizure. In nearly all cases these infractions of the law are through total ignorance of its provisions, and not at all from design. But in this, as in other cases, the innocent suffer with the guilty.

An Old Man Lost.
A day or two since an old and somewhat decrepit gentleman from Massachusetts, who has been visiting our State for the purpose of collecting curiosities for the historical society of his State, of which he is a prominent officer, arrived in this city, having come hither with a purpose of exploring the romantically wild valleys and stupendous mountains on Jefferson street, extending in an unbroken chain of peaks and deep, dark abysses from Third to Fifth streets. The old gentleman was devoted not to venture into the wild and desolate regions without a competent guide, but he was obstinate in his determination to pursue his researches, and was finally permitted to venture into the mountains alone. The last seen of the old, scientific gentleman, he was descending into one of the fearful chasms so numerous in the locality named above. A little boy, who was standing on the top of a three-story house, watched the old man through a powerful glass, until he had gone down several thousand feet, more or less. This occurred on Saturday. Nothing has been seen or heard of the persevering old gentleman since, although the locality where he went down has been thoroughly searched and scoured by crowds of kind-hearted citizens, who now universally agree that the reckless old man has lost his way in the dark caverns below Jefferson street, and that it is hardly probable that he will ever find his way out, but die a most fearful and terrible death in the depths below. We give the above sad story as it was related to us by a Fifth-street musician, and, of course, do not consider ourselves under oath while giving it to our readers. It is a most sad and heart-rending affair.

RIVER PROSPECTS.

Opinion of an Old Steamboatman.

The present prospects for a lively river business during the fall season are good--in fact, they are excellent. Capt. J. Stut. Neal, commander of the great steamer Richmond, gives it as his opinion that the tonnage of the steamboats plying the Mississippi and lower Ohio rivers, will not be adequate to the demand that will be made upon them during the coming fall season. The growing crops throughout the South and West, promise to be overwhelmingly large and abundant in quantity, and excellent in quality. A great revolution in the shipment of grain is being fast inaugurated. The enormous shipments of Western grain that have heretofore been made to Europe by way of New York, will, under the new order of things, go down the Ohio and Mississippi, and find egress through the port of New Orleans.

The cotton and sugar crops will turn out much better than has been anticipated by the most sanguine planters. The wheat and other crops in the West are almost unprecedented in yield. Western farmers will be relieved of all financial embarrassments. Southern planters will be enabled to replenish their granaries, improve their plantations by the purchase of the necessary stock, implements, &c., of which they have stood so much in need during the past several seasons. The broad fields that have for years presented a most uninviting aspect will again assume their wonted beauty and thrift. Then the South may, in a measure, become the paradise of plenty and peace.

MILITARY.

The Match Drill at Cedar Hill To-day.

The long talked of match drill between companies A, C and D (Waddell Grays, Helm Guards and Thomas Zouaves), of the 1st regiment Kentucky National Legion, comes off this afternoon at Cedar Hill Park. We are informed that this affair is creating much excitement among the State military, and that all the companies named, with the exception of the Helm Guards, have been doing a vast amount of drilling in order to secure the "championship." The latter company has, for reasons not necessary to mention, been unable to make as much preparation as the others for this particular occasion, but we feel assured they will acquit themselves creditably, whether they carry off the honors or not. The Grays and Zouaves are hard to beat, and we may expect an exciting contest. The judges selected are fully competent and will render an impartial decision.

We publish elsewhere a notification to the Helm Guards to meet at their armory, "armed and equipped as the law directs," promptly at one o'clock. The other companies meet at their respective armories, at the same hour, from thence proceed to the courthouse, where the battalion will be formed and take up its line of march for the park, under command of Major Felix Allen. Attention, boys! fall in promptly and let us see what you are made of.

LOCAL CHIT-CHAT.

Red-hot and still a heatin'.

Cincinnati lionizes the pugilist Allen. Ristori threatens to come hither. Companions in arms--twin babies. We hear that China and the Chinese will come to see us ere long. They have got as far as Cairo.

In personal encounters, women, like cats, use their nails. They come to the "scratch" at once.

The best woman's rights man is he who would see woman in her right place.

Ginger snaps may be swallowed without offense to the new law. Of course, we mean bakers, not brewers.

The money market and the days are beginning to shorten up together.

There are more men, with apparently nothing to do (and very little to wear) at the City Court every morning than in any other place in the city.

A lady fell to the pavement on Fourth street last evening by slipping upon a piece of banana peeling.

The beer gardens did a tremendous beer business yesterday.

The relief hook and ladder chaps, with John Ferguson at their head, have put their house in excellent order--everything as slick as a peeled onion.

Fishing on the falls is now a favorite recreation.

Watermelons are becoming cheap enough to eat.

A Steamboat Adventure.

There are strange scenes on the mail-boats sometimes, as well as elsewhere. A few mornings since, a gentleman passenger on the Major Anderson retired to his state-room, and soon fell into a doze. In about twenty minutes he awoke suddenly and happening to look toward the door saw his fine coat and vest passing through the air and moving towards the transom. No hand was visible, but the clothing moved with startling precision to the opening, and just as it was about to go over he raised a yell. The clothes dropped instantly, and struck the floor inside the state-room. The astonished passenger listened intently. Not a sound save the echo of the buttons and the restless surging of the river waves, that had been disturbed by a morning shower reached his ears. He jumped from his berth, picked up the coat and vest, felt for $25, found it, and turned in again, slumbering the balance of the morning with a brace of Durangers protruding ominously from beneath his pillow.

THE ST. CHARLES.

Phil. Lotich and the St. Charles still wave.

Phil. Lotich, always keeps his larder supplied with the delicacies of the season, and his bar abounds in creature comforts. He superintends his own business, and knows that everybody is properly treated. And Phil. knows how to treat--well and often.

Sewer Choked Up.

The sewer at the corner of Walnut and Third streets became choked up yesterday, and the fall of rain was so heavy that it completely flooded the streets in that vicinity for an hour or more.

TOWN TOPICS.

The Knights of Pythias

Are notified to meet to-morrow night.

M. B. Depot.

At J. A. Dickinson's, No. 165 Main street, musquito proof.

Green & Green.

No use talking, Green & Green take the lead in keeping the "latest styles."

Ludwig Wunsch

Advertises the manufacture of the largest lot of feather dusters and mops in the market, at No. 54 West Market street.

Louisville Laundry.

The Louisville Steam Laundry is in need of ten or twelve first-class ironers. No others need apply. There is an opportunity for good and permanent employment. In this connection we would say that they do the best laundry work in the city at No. 107 Second street.

Guy's China Palace.

This china establishment still continues to give the best bargains to be found anywhere. The stock is new and complete, embracing every article of China and earthenware manufactured. Mr. Guy has explored Europe for the latest styles and designs, and will be able to suit every purchaser.

Street Fight.

About nine o'clock last night two men got into an altercation in the West End, and, after indulging in some uncompromising remarks toward each other, came to blows, when a regular rough and tumble street fight ensued. A number of hard knocks were given and received. The rules of the prize ring being totally ignored, the men entered into a spirited contest, resulting in each being severely punished. One of them, it is alleged, was severely bitten in the cheek by his adversary, who also got "a few" under the ear for the same. Quite a number of spectators witnessed the encounter, who expressed themselves highly pleased with the performance of both men. As soon as the scrimmage was over both men went and took a drink together at a neighboring saloon, and became good friends.

The Risk.

Glover's Hall was crowded Saturday night, with men, women and children, who availed themselves of this chance of seeing the last entertainment of the season. Everybody was pleased and everybody will be better pleased when Mr. Glover reopens his hall for the fall entertainments. Mr. Glover's enterprise has furnished our city with a recreation alike healthy and delightful.

A Country Exchange.

A country exchange styles Noah Webster "the great American lexicographer." This, perhaps, the highest compliment a dictionary-maker ever received. It is to be feared, though, that Webster wouldn't have estimated it at its proper value.

THE CROXTON CASE.

Report of the Evidence.

We print below the report of the testimony in the case of Joseph Croxtion, indicted for the murder of Ben. Miller in April last. We yielded, and reluctantly, to the united requests of the Judge and counsel in the case to defer its publication, and now fulfill a duty to the public that we are satisfied ought to have been discharged during the progress of the trial. We have omitted a portion only, which has no material bearing on the case.

The case was admirably managed by the defense, and the public, which formed its impressions from the accounts in the newspapers at the time of the homicide, were surprised at the verdict, "not guilty."

The testimony is as follows:

WITNESSES FOR THE COMMONWEALTH.

Frank McNeill called.—When Croxtion entered the room, I was busy. After a few moments I heard Major Cassell say, "Don't do, don't!" Almost at the same time I heard shots--two shots, very close. Others were between me and the parties. The first fair view I got was when Miller struck Croxtion with a chair. I think there were three shots fired before Miller struck Croxtion with the chair he seemed to be holding the chair between him and Croxtion. Then was fired the third shot. Then Croxtion leaned down over him, and asked if he was dead, and said: "Yes, I have killed my bosom friend, and went bitterly. I think I was crying when I was in the side. I saw a pistol lying on a table near by--a Smith & Wesson's, small bore, six or eight inches long. I never considered Miller a dangerous man."

Capt. George B. Rleson called.—I live in Louisville. I have lived in Texas, Omaha and Chicago. I was present when Miller was shot. I saw four, five, six or eight weeks ago. I was up stairs at 102 Fifth street. I heard a pistol shot; turned and saw a man preparing to shoot again. Just then Miller was rising with a chair in his hand. Miller was raising the chair to strike Croxtion. I saw the chair raised. Only one shot was fired before Miller rose. When the second shot was fired Miller was standing up with a chair drawn in his hand. I saw the pistol. This one (examining the pistol shown at the bar) looks like it. I could not swear that Miller was standing when the first shot was fired. Miller got hold of the pistol, but Croxtion got it away from him, (witness illustrates how Croxtion drew it from Miller).

Mrs. Cassell called.—I was at 102 Fifth street on the night Miller lost his life. It was about 8 o'clock on the 23d of April, 1868. Miller came in, and, perhaps, stopped at the door and talked with some one there. He then came up to where I was sitting, and was talking to me when Croxtion came in. There were three shots fired. I noticed the pistol. This one (examining the pistol exhibited) looks very much like the same pistol. I could not find the third bullet. Two shots were fired, and then the chair was raised. I do not think that Miller got hold of the pistol. I think two shots were fired before Miller got up from his chair. I do not think Miller saw Croxtion when the first shot was fired. I do not think Miller saw Croxtion until two shots were fired. Miller was a good-humored man.

Cross-examined.—I am certain the two first shots were fired before Miller rose from his chair. Miller said, "Croxtion has been shot as long as I am going to stand it." As he said this he wiped his face with a handkerchief.

Joseph Schall called.—I saw Ben Miller and Joseph Croxtion on the night of the fatal difficulty at the corner of Fifth and Chestnut streets. I saw Croxtion and saw Joseph Croxtion, Ben. Miller and Levi Neely conversing together. They were standing inside the recess of the door. Miller called Croxtion a liar. Croxtion called Miller a liar. Then Miller called Croxtion a d--d liar. They then clinched. I think his character as a peaceable man was bad. Miller said, "By God, he has abused me, and I will have satisfaction before morning." I know Banks slightly. I think I saw him there. I asked Croxtion what was the matter with Miller, and told him he was raising the devil, and he had better be on his guard. I have known Miller twelve or fifteen years. I do not know whether he carried deadly weapons or not. I once saw him cut a man. He was not more than an ordinary sized man. I think his character as a peaceable man was bad. The Railroad Right of Way.

Ridicule is often more potent than argument, and experience proves that men have frequently been deterred from the advocacy of what they believed right by the fear of being laughed at, even though they felt that the cause must be inherently weak that sought to escape from scrutiny behind the pointed finger of ridicule. We do not, however, intend to be frightened from sounding the tocsin of alarm when we consider the best interests of our city in danger from any idle fear of being called a "bull-breaker," an "old fogey," or an "opponent of the progress of the age," or any such like claptrap. It is those who apply such epithets that are themselves the small-eyed, the narrow-minded. They are the weaklings that cannot rise high enough to take a bird's-eye view of the subject they would treat of, and calculate its dimensions. In the important controversy that is now stirring up this community to its lowest depths, there could hardly be considered to be two parties, if numbers alone were the criterion. Nearly every one is on the side of the city and her interests, and hardly any one on the side of the railroads. Yet the Louisville and Nashville and the Louisville, Cincinnati and Lexington Railroad Companies, combined and working together, are seeking to lead the city to their will, and make her bow before their great moneyed power.

The merits of the controversy, as we understand them are simply these: There are in the United States two railroad systems. One north of the Ohio river, having, with singular exceptions, the same gauge—the other south of the Ohio having also one gauge—but that different from the gauge of the Northern system. These two systems meet on the Ohio river, and there any goods consigned to a point beyond the terminus of either must inevitably break bulk. The obstacle to a free and uninterrupted commercial exchange exists, and will continue, until the two systems are made to assume one uniform gauge. Louisville seeks to throw no obstruction in the way of trade or travel, and desires the freest commercial interchange. She insists, however, that so long as the breaking of bulk is unavoidable, and must take place either here or at Cincinnati, it shall not be removed from here, and as her own draymen, hackmen, and laboring classes generally are deriving some small benefit from it, in the way of employment, that it shall be continued to them. Cincinnati wanted this benefit for herself and is greatly outraged because Louisville will not yield it to her. She has never in her history built a railroad for herself. She has fattened so long on the fruit of others' labor, that she has come to believe that whenever a railroad is built anywhere in her neighborhood it must pay tribute to her, and because Louisville doubts her pretensions with indignation, she waxes wrathful and vents her impotent malice in a threat to open her long-closed coffers and spend ten millions in building a road for herself. What she is really so mad at is that she is compelled to make this expenditure, if she would keep up with Louisville in the race of prosperity, and that we won't save her the expense by generously giving her our Nashville and our Louisville and Cincinnati roads, which have been built for our own advantage, interest and glory, and be content to sink into the insignificance of a mere wayside station, or a Cincinnati suburb.

Let us consider the course which the Louisville and Nashville and Louisville, Cincinnati and Lexington Railroad Companies have pursued in this matter. The Nashville road is of the gauge of the southern system. The Louisville, Frankford and Lexington road was originally of the gauge of the northern system; but was changed by the U. S. Government during the war, to the same gauge as that of the Nashville road. This change was not deemed of much importance, till the Cincinnati branch was commenced, when Louisville awoke to a realization of the danger with which it was fraught to her best interests. The great struggle of last year then began on the part of the citizens of Louisville to obtain control of the question of the gauge by the election of a Board of Directors of the road, pledged to restore the gauge to what it had formerly been, and to lay the branch to Cincinnati, also, of that former gauge. The election took place, and the old board was re-elected upon a pledge to carry out the wishes of Louisville. The pledge, however, has not been redeemed, but on the contrary, the Cincinnati branch has been steadily carried forward to completion upon the gauge of the southern system. The feeling of indignation at this want of faith has been deep and widespread in this community, and has been nursed in quiet, awaiting the development of the intentions of the road. The people distrust those intentions, and we believe, condemn the report of the special committee of the City Council to its meeting of last Thursday night, favoring the grant of a right to the Louisville and Nashville Railroad and the Louisville, Cincinnati and Lexington Railroad to lay connecting tracks through some of our main thoroughfares to their respective depots. Jefferson or Green streets, or probably both, are to be sacrificed upon the altar of their greed. The Louisville and Nashville Railroad is to lay down its track at once upon its gauge. The Louisville, Cincinnati and Lexington Railroad is only to lay its track when it has changed its present gauge to four feet eight and a half inches. This change it evidently has no intention of ever making, if it can help it, and rather than make the change it will never lay a connecting track. What use has it for one? What need has it to go with a connecting track to the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, when that road will have the right to come to it on a connecting track of the same gauge as that of both roads as they stand at present, and that will as soon as laid down make the two one continuous line from Nashville to Cincinnati. This manifestly is the purpose, and the breaking of bulk, with its incidental advantages, is to be transferred from Louisville to the river. In their utter disregard of the interests of Louisville, these roads have the effrontery not only to demand the right to make the proposed connection, but also ask that two of our best thoroughfares be gratuitously bestowed upon them, with the road bed ready graded and prepared to their hands. The proposition is so monstrous, that it would seem insolent, if it were not ridiculous. Can it have been meant in a Pickwickian sense? The manner in which it has been presented forbids us to think so, and we must believe that it is intended in earnest sincerity. Is it not the basest ingratitude on the part of these two corporations, created and fostered by our city, to seek to deal her this death-blow? Like the blood-nourished young of the pelican, they would thrive and wax fat upon the life-current of the mother that brought them into existence.

Citizens of Louisville, awake! Come forth in your might and instruct your representatives in the City Council, that this great wrong must not be done you, and let the fact that you this time pronounce be so emphatic that there shall be no occasion to renew every year this struggle for the preservation of your rights and interests. Let the City Council inform the railroads that under no circumstances, neither now nor hereafter, shall they have a right of way through the heart of our city; and let these roads further understand that if the right of way is ever allowed, even through less important parts of our city, it can be had only on condition of a change of gauge on the part of the Louisville, Cincinnati and Lexington Railroad.

It would seem that it was not General Canby's fault that the Walker ticket was successful in Virginia. The Richmond papers denounce him for the dishonest part he played in order to elect Wells, and the other lousy candidates of the Radical party. Under his auspices the Customhouse at Richmond is said to have been made a perfect "mill" for the manufacture of negro votes. The Enquirer says: "Negroes from all the counties congregate to the canal and the various railroad lines leading to the city, where here rapidly made qualified voters, and dispatched in column to the voting precincts, for the purpose of neutralizing the voice of legally qualified voters of the city. Without a shadow of justification, or even a decent pretext, negroes were given certificates of registration, and permitted to vote on a simple affidavit that they had been in the city for ten days preceding the day of election." All this rascality was, in accordance with orders from Canby, who, desirous to have the sword he disgraces broken and thrown to the dogs.

The quantity of "calico" is increasing so much faster than that of "conduity" in England, that certain parties there who feed on the philosophy of social science, are becoming scared. They are afraid that the old maids will hold the balance of power in the kingdom after awhile, as there are not enough men to supply the demand even now, and things are growing worse every day. In order to remedy the evil, they are talking of sending an immense number of girls to this country, supposing, no doubt, that we are all Brigham Youngs over here, and that we had just as soon marry forty women as one. They are not aware that, at the last census, there were, in the single State of Massachusetts alone, where the ability to make a pumpkin pie always outlasts a girl to a husband, no less than forty thousand more women than men. The women of the West and South don't care anything about it, but that unhappy forty thousand of the old Bay State ought to insist that the English girls shall stay at home.

The Radical party, in their selfish zeal to secure the vote of the negro everywhere and thereby perpetuate their power, are doing the negro no little harm. They are doing their best to cram him down the throats of the white people whether they are willing to swallow him or not, and are thus making for him many an enemy that he would not otherwise have. The other night the Journeymen House Carpenters' Association of Washington City inserted the word "white" in their constitution in order to exclude negroes from membership. They would never have thought of doing this but for the determination on the part of the President, of Congress, of the heads of all the departments, and of the Mayor of Washington to thrust the negro into every hole and corner there that is large enough to contain him. The real white people of this country are anxious to see the negro prosper and do well, and are willing to help him along all they can, but they are not yet ready to accept him as their equal in everything. Congress, backed by bayonets, may force them to do it, but they would much rather wait a while.

Forney says, in a Washington letter to the Philadelphia Press, that "to secure success the Democrats of the South have embraced Republican doctrines." If this be true, the Democrats of the South deserve to be damned. But it is not true. Like everything that Forney says, it is doubly false.

SOMEbody says that "Mrs. Stanton is the salt, Anna Dickinson the pepper, and Miss Anthony the vinegar of the woman's rights movement." And it may be added that Olive Logan is the lye. Together they form a compound which we wish somebody would swallow, but we don't suppose there is anybody who could possibly do it.

"Many ladies in this city are known to be suffering from the effects of deadly poison, in the form of exide of lead, which is found in many of the Cosmetics, Lily Whites, Pearl Drops, &c., &c., which are largely sold in our market. This substance is used to give to the article a peculiar softness and whiteness which cannot be otherwise obtained except by expensive and troublesome manipulations. It is a deadly poison, and those who persist in its use will surely suffer the consequences of a serious nature.

Barnum's Toilet Powders are warranted entirely free from the slightest trace of lead and all other harmful substances. For sale at No. 73 Fourth street, and by druggists and dealers in fancy goods.

"It is strange to see with what carelessness some invalids attend to their health. They will procure a box of PLANTATION BITTERS, which ought to be used up in a month or six weeks, and, upon inquiry, it is found that they have used only two or three bottles. Some days they have used it according to the directions, and others have not touched it. The whole truth has been irregular, and of course a less favorable result has come from their use. If it be true that "what is worth doing at all is worth doing well," how emphatically is it true in matters relating to the health. A few bottles of PLANTATION BITTERS have often wrought wonders, while in other instances disease has only been subdued after weeks of resistance.

SPECIAL NOTICES.
Conclusive Evidence in Favor of Hottel's Stomach Bitters.
W. H. HENSE, a leading druggist in Monticello, Ill., in a letter of June 6, 1898, writes to this effect: "Having sold Hottel's Bitters for the past four years, I cannot but speak of the article as being the best tonic and appetizer extant. During the summer season of 1898, I could not keep a sufficient stock on hand to meet the demands of my customers. In fact, your Bitters was so simple and genuine, I feared that physicians would prescribe it all over the western country. Indeed, a great many families think they are not safe without your invaluable tonic and appetizer."

J. K. WITHERSPOON, Esq., a magistrate of Kershaw county, S. C., states, under date of April 19, 1898, that he has used the Bitters constantly in his own family for the past two years. He first tried the preparation when suffering from exhaustion produced by a severe attack of fever. Before the first bottle was finished he experienced a remarkable change for the better. He had tried brandy at the outset, but found that of him more harm than good. In one month from the time he commenced using the Bitters his health, strength and appetite were restored. He has recommended the article to others in like circumstances, and never known it to fail, and had found it a perfect specific for chills and fever.

MR. SAMUEL YOUNG, of Clarion, Pa., under date of April 6, 1898, certifies that he was completely cured of one of the most distressing attacks of dyspepsia that ever afflicted him, by using three bottles of Hottel's Bitters. "Various other remedies had proved powerless," restored to perfect health, his bowels, and his excellent preparation for the result."

DR. G. M. SPEER, of Irish Creek, Perry county, Ala., writes, under date of Feb. 1, 1898, that he has used your Stomach Bitters for several years in his practice, and finds them superior to most of the Bitters now prescribed by the profession generally. Jy7 coll34w1

LIMERICK CHILL CURE,
A CERTAIN REMEDY
FOR EVERY FORM OF
FEVER AND AGUE,

THE CURE IS PERMANENT.
The Chill Once Broken Will Not Return.

Contains No Quinine or Arsenic, nor Any Deleterious Substance Whatever.

This preparation is carefully compounded of purely vegetable ingredients, and never fails, when properly taken, to cure the most obstinate case of fever and ague, neuralgia, and all malarious diseases. Unlike chill remedies generally, it requires no purgative to be taken with it, the medicine itself acting gently and agreeably upon the liver and bowels, effectually removing the cause of the disease, not merely temporarily checking it. Heroin consists of one great advantage it has over all other preparations, however, the permanency and certainty of its cure, is the fact that no injury whatever can arise from its use, as is certain to be the case when quinine or arsenic are taken, which are the principal ingredients of most of the chill medicines now in use. Quinine, acting upon the nervous system, produces, according to our best authorities, "a feeling of tightness or distention of the head, ringing, buzzing or roaring in the ears, partial deafness," &c., and, when the dose is increased, "complete deafness, diminution or loss of sight, dilated or immovable pupil, coma, and great prostration."

Wintersmith's Tonic Sirup leaves the system in a perfectly healthy condition, with no bad effects in any way to be worn off. Another great virtue claimed for this medicine, and wherein consists its superiority over other medicines, is that the cure is permanent. It rarely requires more than a day or two to effectually break the chill, and, once broken, they will not return.

Hundreds of letters are daily received testifying to the efficacy and wonderful virtues of this remedy. It is very popular wherever sold, taking the place of any chill remedy it comes in competition with.
